Special Issue on Emotion, Cognition, and Behavior

Call for Papers

Emotion is any conscious experience characterized by intense mental activity and a certain degree of pleasure or displeasure. Emotion is often intertwined with mood, temperament, personality, disposition, and motivation. Cognition encompasses processes such as attention, the formation of knowledge, memory and working memory, judgment and evaluation, reasoning and "computation", problem solving and decision making, comprehension and production of language. Human behavior is the responses of individuals or groups of humans to internal and external stimuli. In addition to being dictated by age and genetics, behavior, driven in part by thoughts and feelings, is an insight into individual psyche, revealing among other things attitudes and values. Emotion, cognition and behavior are interdependent, exerting a powerful influence on each other.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Emotion, Cognition, and Behavior. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Emotional modulation of cognition
- Emotion and social behavior
- Cognitive science
- Cognition and brain function
- Consciousness, awareness, attention and mental processing
- Arousal therapy
- Motivation and emotion
- Neurocognitive function
- Affective neuroscience
- Autism, delirium and mental disorder

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the "Special Issue" under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field "Special Issue – *Emotion, Cognition, and Behavior" should be chosen during your submission.
