

Special Issue on
Environmental Protection and Sustainable Growth

Call for Papers

Environmental Protection and Sustainable Growth explores the interplay between ecological conservation and long-term economic development in the face of global environmental challenges. It invites contributions that examine strategies for reducing pollution, conserving natural resources, and mitigating climate change, while promoting inclusive and resilient economic growth. Topics may include green technologies, renewable energy systems, circular economy models, environmental policy and governance, and sustainable urban and industrial practices. By integrating scientific, economic, and policy perspectives, this issue aims to advance innovative solutions that balance environmental stewardship with sustainable development goals.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Environmental Protection and Sustainable Growth. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Environmental policy and governance
- Sustainable development strategies
- Climate change mitigation and adaptation
- Renewable energy systems
- Pollution control and management
- Natural resource conservation
- Circular economy and waste management
- Sustainable urban development
- Green technology and innovation
- Environmental economics
- Biodiversity conservation
- Ecosystem management and restoration
- Sustainable agriculture and land use
- Water resource management
- Environmental impact assessment
- Corporate sustainability and ESG

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Environmental Protection and Sustainable Growth” should be selected during your submission.
