

Special Issue on Personality, Cognition and Behavior

Call for Papers

While there is no single agreed upon definition of personality, it is often thought of as something that arises from within the individual and remains fairly consistent throughout life. It encompasses all of the thoughts, behavior patterns, and social attitudes that impact how we view ourselves and what we believe about others and the world around us. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in this area of personality, cognition and behavior.

In this special issue, we invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles that explore personality, cognition and behavior. In this special issue, potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Evolutionary personality psychology
- Personality assessment, measurement
- Motives and personality
- Cognitive topics in personality
- Personality and social interaction
- Personality and behavior
- Cognitive and behavioral
- Behaviorist theories

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue – Personality, Cognition and Behavior” should be selected during your submission.
