

Special Issue on
Inclusive Growth and Social Justice

Call for Papers

Inclusive Growth and Social Justice explores strategies and frameworks that promote equitable economic development while ensuring fair opportunities and outcomes for all members of society. It focuses on how economic growth can be aligned with social equity, human rights, and the reduction of structural inequalities across income, gender, ethnicity, and geography. By integrating perspectives from economics, sociology, public policy, and development studies, this issue highlights pathways for creating participatory, resilient, and inclusive systems that enable marginalized groups to benefit fully from progress.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Inclusive Growth and Social Justice. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Community empowerment initiatives
- Education access research
- Equal opportunity frameworks
- Gender equality studies
- Health equity analysis
- Human rights-based governance
- Inclusive economic development
- Labor rights and protections
- Migration and social integration
- Minority rights advocacy
- Poverty reduction strategies
- Public welfare systems
- Rural-urban disparity studies
- Social equity policy
- Social protection programs
- Sustainable livelihood development

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Inclusive Growth and Social Justice” should be selected during your submission.
