

Special Issue on Public Law and Public Administration

Call for Papers

Public Law and Public Administration is an interdisciplinary field that examines the legal frameworks governing public institutions and the principles guiding the organization, operation, and accountability of public administration. It focuses on constitutional and administrative law, the exercise of public authority, regulatory mechanisms, and the relationship between the state and individuals. The field also addresses issues of governance, public policy implementation, administrative reform, and the rule of law, with particular attention to transparency, efficiency, and accountability in public sector management. Through theoretical analysis and empirical research, Public Law and Public Administration contributes to a deeper understanding of how legal norms and administrative practices shape effective and lawful governance in contemporary societies.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Public Law and Public Administration. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Administrative law
- Administrative justice and remedies
- Administrative reform and innovation
- Comparative public law
- Constitutional law
- E-government and digital governance
- Government accountability and transparency
- Human rights in public administration
- Local government law and administration
- Public administration theory
- Public finance and budgetary law
- Public governance and management
- Public policy analysis
- Public sector ethics and integrity
- Regulatory law and policy
- Rule of law and public institutions

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Public Law and Public Administration” should be selected during your submission.
