

Special Issue on Legal Theory and Practice

Call for Papers

Legal Theory and Practice examines the foundations, interpretation, and application of legal systems across diverse social, political, and economic contexts. It encompasses research on constitutional, civil, criminal, commercial, international, and human rights law, as well as legal ethics, judicial processes, dispute resolution, and comparative legal studies. The field also encourages interdisciplinary perspectives on emerging legal challenges related to digital technologies, artificial intelligence, environmental governance, public policy, and global justice. By integrating theoretical inquiry with practical legal applications, it seeks to advance legal scholarship, strengthen the rule of law, and support the development of fair, effective, and sustainable legal institutions.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Legal Theory and Practice. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Legal theory
- Constitutional law
- Criminal law
- Civil law
- Administrative law
- Commercial law
