

Special Issue on Chinese Culture and Society

Call for Papers

Chinese Culture and Society investigates the historical, social, and cultural foundations of China alongside contemporary developments that shape everyday life. The field addresses philosophy, literature, art, religion, language, family structures, social norms, and values, highlighting their influence on individual behavior, identity, and community organization. It also considers political, economic, and technological transformations, urbanization, and globalization, and how these processes affect social change and cultural continuity. By combining historical context with modern social analysis, this area provides insights into the complexity of Chinese society and the interaction between tradition and modernity.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Chinese Culture and Society. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Chinese history and historiography
- Chinese language and linguistics
- Chinese literature
- Chinese philosophy
- Contemporary social change
- Education and cultural transmission
- Family structures and kinship
- Folklore and mythology
- Gender and society
- Globalization and cultural exchange
- Media and popular culture
- Political culture and governance
- Religion and spiritual practices
- Social norms and values
- Traditional arts and crafts
- Urbanization and migration

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Chinese Culture and Society” should be selected during your submission.
