

Special Issue on Chinese Society and Cultural Studies

Call for Papers

Chinese Society and Cultural Studies examines the historical development, social structures, cultural practices, intellectual traditions, and contemporary transformations of Chinese communities and institutions. It considers subjects such as family and kinship, education, religion and belief, language, literature, popular culture, social values, migration, urbanization, regional diversity, and changing patterns of everyday life. The topic also encourages research into the interactions between tradition and modernity, local identities and globalization, as well as the ways in which economic, demographic, technological, and cultural changes are reshaping Chinese society in different historical and geographical contexts.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Chinese Society and Cultural Studies. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Family and kinship
- Social stratification
- Urbanization and migration
- Rural communities
- Education and society
- Language and communication
- Literature and cultural expression
- Religion and belief
- Philosophy and intellectual traditions
- Popular culture and media
- Art and cultural heritage
- Gender and social relations
- Youth and generational change
- Ethnicity and regional diversity
- Social values and everyday life
- Globalization and cultural change

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Chinese Society and Cultural Studies” should be selected during your submission.
