

Special Issue on Case Reports in Oncology

Call for Papers

Case Reports in Oncology is a clinical academic field dedicated to documenting and analyzing unique, rare or educational cases related to cancer diagnosis, treatment and patient management. It covers various malignancies, novel therapeutic approaches, unusual disease presentations, treatment responses and adverse events. By sharing real-world clinical experiences, the field contributes to medical education, improves clinical decision-making and promotes the advancement of personalized and evidence-based oncology care.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Case Reports in Oncology. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Rare cancers and tumors
- Unusual clinical presentations
- Novel diagnostic techniques
- Surgical oncology case studies
- Radiation oncology and treatment complications
- Immunotherapy-related case reports
- Cancer-related complications and comorbidities
- Imaging case reports
- Diagnostic dilemmas and unusual pathology
- Integrative oncology and complementary therapies
- Precision oncology and molecular diagnostics
- Metastatic disease and multidisciplinary management
- Cancer in special populations
- Palliative and end-of-life care innovations
- Survivorship and quality of life
- AI-driven case analysis
