Special Issue on Urban Growth and Sustainability

Call for Papers

Urban Growth and Sustainability explores the dynamics of urban expansion and its implications for environmental protection, economic development, and social well-being. It examines how cities can accommodate population growth, infrastructure demands, and economic activities while minimizing ecological impacts and promoting resource efficiency. The field integrates perspectives from urban planning, environmental science, economics, and public policy to address challenges such as land-use change, climate adaptation, energy use, and social equity. By emphasizing sustainable planning strategies and governance frameworks, Urban Growth and Sustainability seeks to support resilient, inclusive, and environmentally responsible urban development in both developed and developing contexts.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Urban Growth and Sustainability. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Affordable housing and community planning
- Energy-efficient urban design
- Green infrastructure
- Land-use management
- Smart city technologies
- Socioeconomic urban development
- Sustainable architecture
- Urban ecology
- Urban planning
- Urban transportation systems

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Urban Growth and Sustainability” should be selected during your submission.
