

Special Issue on Food Security and Sustainability

Call for Papers

Food security means the people have physical, social, and economic access to sufficient, safe, and nutritious food to meet their dietary needs for a productive and healthy life at all times. Food insecurity is often rooted in poverty or disaster, in which the people often live in hunger or fear of hunger. The goal of this special issue is to provide a platform for scientists and academicians all over the world to promote, share, and discuss various new issues and developments in the area of Food Security and Sustainability.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Food Security and Sustainability. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Children and food security
- Nutrition, food quality and food safety
- Land, agricultural and food policy
- Desertification and flooding
- Natural disasters
- Food security and protracted crisis
- Emergency food assistance
- Global food potential and global food production
- Wars and ethnic unrest

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Food Security and Sustainability” should be selected during your submission.
