Special Issue on
Food Sustainability and Safety Control

Call for Papers

Food Sustainability and Safety Control addresses the development of secure, efficient, and environmentally responsible food systems that ensure both long-term resource sustainability and public health protection. This field integrates sustainable agriculture, food production, processing technologies, and supply chain management with rigorous safety monitoring and regulatory frameworks. It covers areas such as food quality assurance, contamination prevention, traceability systems, food waste reduction, cold chain logistics, and risk assessment of foodborne hazards. Emphasis is also placed on eco-friendly production methods, nutritional security, and resilient food systems capable of adapting to climate change and global supply disruptions.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Food Sustainability and Safety Control. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Sustainable food production
- Food safety management systems
- Food quality assurance
- Food traceability systems
- Foodborne pathogen control
- Agricultural sustainability practices
- Food supply chain management
- Food contamination prevention
- Risk assessment and hazard analysis
- Cold chain logistics
- Food waste reduction strategies
- Food authentication technologies
- Regulatory food compliance
- Smart food packaging systems
- Nutritional security management
- Environmental impact of food systems

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.
