

Special Issue on Public Health

Call for Papers

Public health is concerned with protecting and improving the health of entire population. The population can be small as a local neighborhood, or as large as an entire country or region of the world. It tries to prevent diseases from happening or recurring, prolong life and promote health through implementing educational programs, recommending policies, administering services, conducting research, etc.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Public Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Public health service
- Public health and food safety
- Environment and public health
- Public health practice and impact
- Health promotion and disease prevention
- Public health programmes or interventions
- Safe drinking water
- Health hazards in the community
- Education for public health
- New insights and innovative solutions to health problems

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly specify the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title. The research field “Special Issue - Public Health” should be selected during your submission.

Special Issue Timetable:

Submission Deadline	June 15th, 2016
Publication Date	August 2016

Guest Editor:

For further questions or inquiries, please contact Editorial Assistant at health@scirp.org.