

Special Issue on Health Economics

Call for Papers

Health economics is concerned with issues related to efficiency, effectiveness, value and behavior in the production and consumption of health and healthcare. In broad terms, health economists study the functioning of healthcare systems and health-affecting behaviors.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Health Economics. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Health outcomes and economic evaluation
- Economic studies and public health
- Health and welfare
- Socioeconomic analysis and health issue
- Health and market analysis
- Health insurance
- Cost-effective method and cost management
- Health expenditures and policy
- Consumer behavior and health science
- Hospital financial management
- Health care utilization
- Budget and financial planning
- Health research and development cost
- Pharmacoeconomics
- Medicaid
- Incentives policy

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.

Please kindly notice that the “Special Issue” under your manuscript title is supposed to be specified and the research field “Special Issue – Health Economics” should be chosen during your submission.
