Special Issue on Public Health

Call for Papers

Public Health is a multidisciplinary field focused on protecting and improving the health of populations through prevention, education, policy and research. It addresses issues such as disease prevention, health promotion, epidemiology, environmental health and healthcare systems. Public health professionals work to reduce health disparities, manage public health crises and promote healthy lifestyles at local, national and global levels.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Public Health. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Epidemiology
- Biostatistics
- Public health services
- Health policy and management
- Infectious disease control and prevention
- Chronic disease epidemiology and control
- Public health surveillance
- Community health
- Global health
- Occupational health and safety
- Nutrition and public health
- Environmental health
- Public health informatics
- Quality of life
- Public mental health
- Social and behavioral sciences
- Health promotion and education
- Health equity and disparities
- Public health emergency

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.
