Special Issue on
Information, Network & Computer Security
Call for Papers

Information, Network and Computer Security is an academic field focused on protecting digital information, networks, and computing systems from unauthorized access, attacks, and damage. It involves the study of security principles, cryptographic techniques, network defense strategies, and risk management. This discipline addresses threats such as malware, hacking, and data breaches, aiming to ensure confidentiality, integrity, and availability of information. It plays a crucial role in safeguarding personal, corporate, and governmental data across various technological platforms.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Information, Network & Computer Security. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Cryptography and encryption
- Information security
- Computer and system security
- Internet of things (IoT) security
- Web and application security
- Network protocols and security
- Cloud security
- Wireless and mobile security
- Data security and privacy
- Identity and access management
- Intrusion detection systems
- Threat intelligence and analysis
- Malware analysis and defense
- Incident response and forensics
- AI and cybersecurity
- Secure software development

Authors should read over the journal's For Authors carefully before submission. Prospective authors should submit an electronic copy of their complete manuscript through the journal's Paper Submission System.
