Special Issue on
Sustainable Development and Environmental Resilience
Call for Papers

Sustainable Development and Environmental Resilience examines strategies, frameworks, and innovations that support long-term ecological balance while enhancing society's capacity to adapt to environmental challenges. It focuses on sustainable resource management, climate adaptation, biodiversity protection, and resilient infrastructure systems that safeguard both natural and human environments. By integrating insights from environmental science, policy studies, engineering, and socio-economic research, this issue highlights pathways for building resilient communities, promoting green development, and ensuring a sustainable future for generations to come.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on exploring Sustainable Development and Environmental Resilience. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:

- Biodiversity Conservation
- Circular Economy Practices
- Climate Change Adaptation
- Community-Based Natural Resource Management
- Disaster Risk Reduction and Management
- Ecosystem Restoration
- Environmental Impact Assessment
- Environmental Policy and Governance
- Green Infrastructure Development
- Pollution Control and Waste Management
- Renewable Energy Systems
- Socio-Ecological Systems Analysis
