

Special Issue on Banking and Finance

Call for Papers

Banking and Finance studies the management of money, financial institutions, and markets that facilitate the flow of capital in an economy. It examines banking operations, financial instruments, investment strategies, risk management, and regulatory frameworks. The field also explores how individuals, businesses, and governments raise, allocate, and manage funds, aiming to ensure financial stability, efficient resource allocation, and sustainable economic growth.

In this special issue, we intend to invite front-line researchers and authors to submit original research and review articles on Banking and Finance. Potential topics include, but are not limited to:
